

CONTENTS

Introduction	11
CHAPTER 1. National Identity and Discourse.
Theory and Methodology	37
1.1. National identity and discourse	37
1.1.1. National identity as a construct	37
1.1.2. Main types of identity problems in Ukraine during the social and political transformation in the post-Soviet period	50
1.1.3. Text, discourse and context	71
1.1.4. Discourses of identity and media	78
1.2. Methodology and methods of textual analysis	85
1.2.1. Content analysis	87
1.2.2. Critical Discourse Analysis	90
1.2.3. Norman Fairclough's methods of Critical Discourse Analysis	93
1.2.4. Ruth Wodak's Critical Discourse Analysis approach to national identity	95
1.2.5. Theo van Leeuwen's method of analysis of social actors	98
1.2.6. Analysis of narrative	100
CHAPTER 2. Media Communication System and Opinion- Forming Press	105
2.1. Mass media in the process of identity construction ...	105
2.2. Polish opinion-forming press and the discourse of opinion journalism (publicystyka)	109
2.3. Opinion-forming press on the Polish media market ...	117

CONTENTS

CHAPTER 3. “Ukraine Is Not Russia”: The Orange Revolution and Changes in Ukrainian Identity in the Polish Opinion-Forming Press	133
3.1. Representation of Ukraine before the Orange Revolution	138
3.1.1. The politicians.	138
3.1.2. The oligarchs.	147
3.1.3. The society	151
3.2. Re-inventing Ukraine. The discourse of the “birth of a nation”	154
3.3. Actors of identity during the Orange Revolution	172
3.3.1. Viktor Yushchenko, the hetman of freedom	172
3.3.2. Yulia Tymoshenko, Joan of Arc or the “gas princess”	178
3.4. Discourse of a “divided Ukraine”	184
3.5. Post-Orange disappointment: the Empire strikes back	190
CHAPTER 4. “Goodbye Lenin”: The Euromaidan and Ukrainian Identity in the Polish Opinion-Forming Press	195
4.1. Voices of representation	197
4.2. Social actors, agencies and the framing of the protests	202
4.2.1. Activists and young people	205
4.2.2. Radical nationalists.	207
4.2.3. Politicians	216
4.2.4. Oligarchs	218
4.2.5. People of culture.	220
4.2.6. Clergy	228
4.3. Agency. The image of the Euromaidan	228
4.3.1. The Maidan as the Zaporizhian Sich	229
4.3.2. The Maidan as the site of a “new Ukraine”	231
4.3.3. The republic of the Maidan	233
4.4. Geography of representation	234
4.5. Wording	237

4.5.1. Ukraine as a “failed state”	240
4.5.2. “Two Ukraines”	242
4.5.3. Values	243
CHAPTER 5. Models and Patterns of Ukrainian Identity Represented in Polish Opinion-Forming Press: Comparisons, Narratives, Explanations	247
5.1. The Orange Revolution versus the Euromaidan and the process of identity construction in Ukraine	248
5.1.1. Discursive strategies and models of Ukrainian identity constructed in the Polish press	257
5.2. Polish-Ukrainian historical discourse and the perception of Ukrainian identity	265
5.2.1. Discourse of Kresy (Borderlands)	286
5.2.2. Discourse of Central and Eastern Europe	296
5.2.3. Discourse of Ukraine as Poland’s raison d’état	300
Conclusions	317
Bibliography	329
Appendices	351
Index of names	353
List of figures	359
List of tables	360